

INSTITUTE FOR SECURITY TECHNOLOGY STUDIES

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE

Office of the Director

February 3, 2004

To whom it may concern,

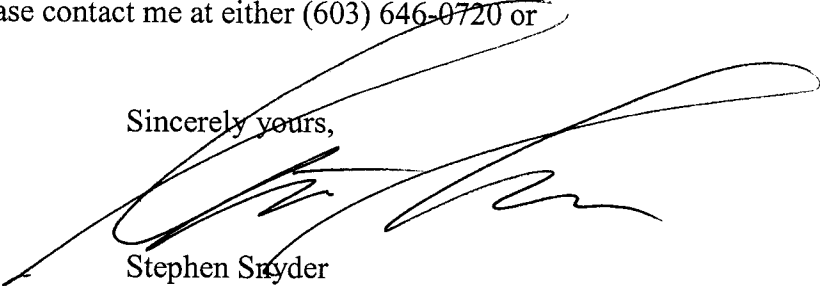

It is my pleasure to recommend Lyndon Scott to you as a conscientious, organized, and uniquely talented employee. In his relatively short tenure here at The Institute for Security Technology Studies, he has cheerfully undertaken a variety of critical and demanding tasks that, in every instance, furthered the work of our Institute. He continually garnered praise from coworkers and myself for going beyond what was asked of him.

Mr. Scott's involvement in the national cybersecurity exercise Livewire entrusted to us by the White House and the US Department of Homeland Security is the most prominent example of his talent and hard work. In a seriously limited timeframe and with virtually no supervision, Lyndon played a crucial role in preparing over 200 cyber attack-related stories to appear throughout the exercise via a simulated news website. The realism and accuracy of his work profoundly affected the nature of the event and was one of the most highly-praised aspects of that endeavor.

In other areas ranging from administrative assistance to audiovisual and computing support, Lyndon has shown equal intelligence, grace under pressure, and a willingness to cooperate with others that is extremely rare in any workplace.
